DISTRICT COURT.

There Were Two District Courts Yesterday—The Big Mining Case.

There were two divisions of the District Court yesterday. Judge Downer arrived from Boulder and took charge of the criminal division. Judge Campbell continued the Prince Albert suit. Judge Downer held forth in the District Court room. In this court a number of prisoners were arraigned and entered their pleas; process was allowed in several cases. A number of cases were set for trial, and some preliminary business was transacted in the civil cases. The court will probably get down to the trial of cases to-day.

Judge Campbell took the big mining suit with all of attorneys over to Weber Hall, which had been fitted up as a court room. The new quarters were found to be quite comfortable. The case still drags along. The Great Mogul people have not yet concluded their evidence. The character of the evidence yesterday was to identify the ground now under dispute as that staked by Hussey. Evidence was also taken to show the assays from the Mogul ore.

TWO BURGLARIES.

Business Houses Broken Into on Sunday Night.

Two burglaries were committed in the city Sunday night, in the business part of town.

About 10:30 in the evening the policemen in their rounds discovered that the rear door of Gordon's tailoring shop on Pike's Peak avenue had been forced. An examination yesterday morning showed that ten pairs of trousers, completed for customers, had been taken, and two coats. None of the cloth in stock was touched, so far as Mr. Gordon is able to judge. The loss is about $200.

The front door of the Enterprise meat market on South Tejon street was broken open the same night but nothing was taken and it is thought the thieves were frightened away.

Change in By-Laws.

At the meeting of the Colorado Springs Aid Society held last Saturday it was voted to amend the by-law upon membership in the society as follows:

"The Mayor of the City of Colorado Springs, the city and county physicians, the Chief of the Police Department and an advisory committee of four gentlemen who shall be appointed by the board shall be ex-officio members of the society. And further the pastors of all the churches in the city and the heads of other organizations which give any aid to the poor shall be asked to secure two members for the society who shall be present at its meetings and whose special duty shall be to extend information of the work of the society in their respective organizations. They shall be ex-officio members of the Membership Committee of the society."

Davenport Engagement.

Fanny Davenport will appear at the Opera House Thursday and Friday evenings. Of her The Boston Globe says: "Miss Fanny Davenport began a two-weeks' engagement at the Park Theater last evening in 'Fedora,' the play which M. Sardou wrote for Sarah Bernhardt and which that actress presented at the Hollis Street Theater on Monday evening of last week by permission of Miss Davenport, who holds the right to the drama in this country. Miss Davenport has been seen in this great part so often in this city and her work has so frequently been considered in these columns that it is not necessary to refer to it at length at this time. Those who saw Sarah Bernhardt in this part last week, and are familiar with Davenport's impersonation of the character, have now a much more favorable opinion of the American actress's work than they had originally when they thought, perhaps, that her conception was that of the original, and that much of her acting was copied from the French artist. Miss Davenport's 'Fedora' is by no means a servile copy of the French original, but has a strength, brightness and finish peculiarly its own. It is, as ever, a powerful deeply impressive performance, and Miss Davenport never acted better than she did last evening, or with greater results. The audience was large and enthusiastic." The sale of reserved seats is now going on, and judging from the present take, Miss Davenport will be greeted by large and fashionable audience.

NEEDED RELIEF.

The Santa Fe Pay Car Will Start on Its Rounds at Once.

DENVER, Jan. 15. To-day Governor Waite sent a letter to Judge Hallet of the United States District Court regarding the unfortunate plight of the employees of the Atchison road, appealing for prompt action.

Mr. Collbran unofficially stated to-day that the pay car will start out at once to relieve their distress and that the delay was due to the inability of the receivers to get in touch with the business of the system within so short a time.

Small Pox in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Jan. 14. But two cases of small pox were discovered to-day. Both these were in the quarantined lodging house at 124 West Madison street. The names of the victims are John Cronin and William Becker. Commissioner Reynolds felt much relieved to-night to learn that no new outside cases had been discovered during the day. He has not yet selected the site for the new small pox hospital.

A Patron Saint's Statue Robbed.

Thieves have lately relieved the statue of the Virgin of Attoccha, the patron saint of Madrid, of the magnificent jewelry with which it was covered. The robbery took place in the Madrilene Church del Buen Sucheso, where the statue had been temporarily placed, and among the treasure stolen was a valuable opal and diamond ring which had been presented by the queen regent, and which is popularly believed to have brought death and misfortune to Queen Mercedes, the Infanto Pilar and the late King Alfonso, to each of whom it in turn belonged.

The Judge Fined Himself.

Judge McDonnel of Savannah was tardy in putting in an appearance at court the other day, for which he fined himself $10 and then promptly remitted the fine.

HILL'S VICTORY.

He Succeeds in Defeating the Nomination of Hornblower.

A CLOSE VOTE IN THE SENATE.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—The Senate went into executive session at 12:12 p. m. and almost as soon as the doors were closed Mr. Hill called up the report of the Judiciary committee on the Hornblower case and began speaking in support of the adverse report of the committee. It is understood that Mr. Hill went into this case in detail and made a vigorous speech in opposition to confirmation on the ground that Mr. Hornblower was not qualified to sit upon the Supreme bench of the United States and that in corroboration of these statements in support of the report of the committee be laid before the Senate the letters and other evidence which had been before the committee.

Mr. Hill did not, according to current report, omit to discuss the political phase of the case but, on the contrary, made some very plain statements as to the reason why from his point of view the nomination was made and insisted upon.

He also held that the action of the President was the first step in the direction of a complete overthrow, unless the the executive be checked, of the Senatorial prerogative and he appealed to Senators regardless of party, to stand by the report of the Judiciary committee, a report that was non-partisan in its character and which enamanated from one of the greatest committees of the Senate. Mr. Hill, it is said, urged the Senators to use what judgment they were called upon to exercise under the constitution and to exercise it undeterred by the fear of patronage or favor. Mr. Hill's entire speech indicated, it is said, a vigorous opposition to the nomination.

Mr. Hill finished speaking at 2:15 and one Senator who heard it throughout characterized the speech as a "plain, straight-forward statement at which no one could take offense."

He was followed by Mr. Vilas, a member of the Judiciary committee, and one of the administration Senators on that committee.

On the vote being taken Hornblower was defeated for confirmation by a majority of six.

FIFTY-THIRD CONGRESS.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—After prayer the usual morning crop of petitions against the Wilson tariff bill, in favor of government control of telegraphs and on various other subjects was gathered in and stowed away.

At 12:45 the Senate, on motion of Mr. Hill, went into executive session to discuss the nomination of Mr. Hornblower as associated justice of the Supreme Court of the United States. The doors remained closed until 7 o'clock, at which hour the Senate adjourned.

HOUSE.

Only about thirty Democratic members were present at the beginning of to-day's session of the House and the galleries were comparatively deserted. Mr. Boutelle (Rep.) of Maine endeavored to call up his Hawaiian resolution after a tilt with Mr. McMillin (Dem.) of Tennessee. Mr. Boutelle was ordered to take his seat, the speaker ruling that no question of privilege was involved.

At 12:15 the clerks began to read the Wilson bill, relieving each other about every fifteen minutes. It required two hours and twenty-three minutes to read the bill, even at the rapid rate with which the clerks proceeded. Immediately after the reading of the bill Chairman Wilson suggested that for three days they should be open to amendment by section, instead of having amendments offered at any point in the bill indiscriminately.

A number of amendments offered by Mr. Wilson were adopted after much discussion. At 5:30 the committee rose and the House took a recess till 8 p. m.

EVENING SESSION.

Mr. Powers (Rep.) of Vermont, and Mr. Boen (Rep.) of Minnesota, spoke in opposition to the bill.

Mr. Hudson (Dem.) of Kansas defended the provisions of the Wilson bill. He said the first speaker of the evening (Mr. Powers) had opposed the bill in the interest of the American workingman.

But it would seem from his speech that the definition "American workingman" was one who worked in the mills of New England. It would seem that there was no workingmen in the South or West.

At 10:10 the House adjourned.

A FRIGHTFUL ACCIDENT.

SAN RAFAEL, Calif., Jan. 11. News has just reached here of a frightful railroad accident at Austin Creek bridge on the line of the North Pacific Coast railroad between the stations of Duncan's Mills and Cazalero in this county. As engine No. 6 of the North Pacific Coast railroad was crossing Austin creek at 7 o'clock last evening the bridge gave way and the engine rolled into the stream below a distance of forty feet, drowning seven men. The men were on their way to a wash-out along the road and were going at a high rate of speed.

THEY COULDN'T PLAY.

Incompetent Musicians at the Tabor Grand Cause a Disturbance.

DENVER, Jan. 15. At the Tabor Grand the large audience was dismissed tonight with a statement from the management of the house that the American Extravaganza company refused to give a performance. A representative of the company attempted to make a statement when he was jeered at and hissed by people in the audience. An injunction was served restraining Manager Henderson from removing his property from the theater or from leaving the city. He gave bond for $25,000 and the property was released.

Charles Dickson, playing at the Broadway theater, sold out his time and "Sinbad" will be seen there the remainder of the week. Manager Henderson issued a statement saying: "The Tabor opera house management have deceived me in the grossest manner regarding the ability of their orchestra to perform my music."

The complaints about this orchestra are with nearly every one who has played at the Tabor this season. The Tabor management claim the orchestra is competent but that this is an attempt to favor the musicians' union.

AT THEIR WITS' END.

To Find News That Does Not Give the Doldrums.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—Politicians at the capital were much amused at the announcement made a short time ago to the effect that ex-President Harrison was not a candidate for the Republican nomination in 1896. The Republicans in Washington say they think they see the hidden motive for this publication. The friends of General Harrison are among the most astute politicians in the country, and they know the danger of a premature boom. They do not wish to have their favorite posing before the people as a presidential aspirant so long before the meeting of the convention. At the same time it is generally understood that no efforts in the direction of quietly tilling the political soil, with a view to a Harrison crop when the proper season comes, are to be neglected on account of this announcement.

Another theory in Washington is that the announcement of Mr. Harrison's lack of ambition was made for purposes connected with the recent meeting of the Republican national committee in this city. That committee is not friendly to General Harrison and never was, at least it has never been since the inauguration of 1889. It was feared by some of the ex-president's special friends that the meeting of the national committee might be used in opposition to him in some way, and hence publication of the alleged fact that Harrison was not a candidate was made seemingly by authority.

Unhappy, Yet Not Without Admirers.

One of the most unhappy men in Washington is Chairman Wilson of the ways and means committee. Mr. Wilson is a polite, quiet, scholarly and studious man. He has little love for the hurly burly of politics or for the rough and tumble debate which is often indulged upon the floor of the house. For many months he has worked on the new tariff bill as man has rarely worked before. He has, as he says, been a slave to duty. Night and day, with all his strength and endurance, has he toiled. And what does he get for it? Nothing but abuse and misrepresentation, fault finding, opposition—not a little of it from his own party—from the very men who in the nature of things would be expected to stand by him.

At one time Mr. Wilson felt so badly over the treatment accorded him by his fellow Democrats that he thought seriously of resigning and escaping all the annoyance and trial by a return to his books. But that would have been rather cowardly, and Mr. Wilson is not a coward. So he stood his ground, and in Washington it is generally believed he will find his reward in an appointment to the supreme court bench if a vacancy in the right circuit occurs during Mr. Cleveland's term.

Awaiting a Turn of the Tide.

The Washington manager of one of the great telegraphic press associations received a terse inquiry from one of his customers a few days ago. It was, "Why in thunder don't you give us a little Democratic stuff out of Washington?" His reply was equally pointed. "There isn't any," he wired back. It is a remarkable fact that for several weeks the representatives of the press associations in Washington have been at their wits' ends to find news to send that would not be discouraging to the Democratic party. The aim of these press associations is to be absolutely impartial, and if forced to send bad news for one party to even it up by sending bad news to the other party. But of late it has seemed that the only news in town was news which only Republicans would really enjoy, and it was not surprising that the Democratic editor finally broke forth with his inquiry why some of the Democratic counties could not be heard from once in awhile.

The remark has frequently been made in Washington during the past six weeks that the Democratic party has been in the slough of despond. The elections went against it; the tariff bill raised a storm of opposition in the ranks; the Hawaiian business turned out exceedingly unfortunate. It appears that parties are like individuals in that they have their periods of ill luck. At this capital the Democrats are anxiously but confidently awaiting a turn of the tide.

The Passing of Mr. Gresham.

During all this Hawaiian row the correspondent of a San Francisco paper has been in serious trouble. The San Francisco papers naturally have been keenly interested in everything pertaining to Hawaii. They have instructed their correspondents here to get up early and stay up late to make sure of getting everything going. In the case of this particular correspondent the instructions have been followed so literally that he scarcely goes to bed at all. His paper has both a morning and an afternoon edition. With the difference of time between San Francisco and Washington it is possible to print afternoon news in a morning newspaper and morning news in an afternoon newspaper if the correspondent is only on the alert early and late. This unfortunate newsgatherer has thus been kept on the jump about 20 hours out of the 24. If the Hawaiian business is not soon settled, he will have to resign or go to a hospital.

Politicians, like parties, have their ups and downs. A few months ago Mr. Gresham was the rising man of the Democratic party. It was he who killed the silver compromise scheme, and when that prettily laid plan went to pieces Senator Gorman retired to his tent a bitterly disappointed and badly defeated man. Gorman's end of the teeter board was way down and Gresham's was aloft. Now the thing has swung the other way. It is Mr. Gresham who is waiting for the clouds to roll by, while the senator whose little compromise bantling had its head cut off by the big secretary of state now takes keen delight in posing more or less sincerely, and more or less in a Pickwickian sense, as the friend of the administration in the upper branch of congress.

Whenever Mr. Hoar or some other Nemesislike Republican introduces a resolution intended to annoy President Cleveland or his secretary of state, it is Mr. Gorman who usually rises, and with that peculiar smile which we all know so well suggests that under the rules it had better lie over, or that it had better be referred to the appropriate committee. It is as good as a circus to watch the ups and downs of great men here.

FIFTEEN DEAD.

Horrible Collision on the Lackawanna Railroad.

IT WAS CAUSED BY THE FOG.

A Local Train Crashes Into the Rear of an Express—Two Cars Telescoped—Twenty-five Passengers Were Seriously Injured.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—A frightful accident occurred this morning on the west side of the Hackensack bridge, on the Morris and Essex branch of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western road. The train that leaves Roseville at 8 o'clock crashed into the rear of the Dover express, telescoping two cars. Fifteen passengers in these cars are known to have been killed, and at least twenty-five are terribly injured. The conductor of the wrecked train is Jere George. He was not injured.

The Dover express passed through Roseville without stopping. The train which ran into the express is the regular commutation train. It pulled out of Roseville four minutes after the express had disappeared in the fog in the direction of New York. On approaching the bridge over the Hackensack river the express slowed up. For what reason is unknown, but it is thought that the engineer could not see the signals because of the dense fog, and slowed up his train to avoid danger. The commutation train following, did not halt at the bridge, but came along at its usual rate of speed. Then the engineer saw the express when less than 200 feet from it. Although he reversed his engine, he could not prevent a collision. The ponderous locomotive smashed into the rear car, throwing it from the track. This car and the one ahead of it were completely wrecked. Both cars were full of passengers, who were crushed to death or terribly mangled. The engineer of the commutation train is missing and said to be among the killed.

The brakeman of the rear car of the Dover express discovered that a wreck was inevitable and shouted at the top of his voice: "Jump for your lives! The train is coming behind, and will be on us in a minute!"

This warning cry was sufficient to put the entire rear car of the express in a commotion. Passengers rushed pell mell for the nearest means of exit. Some jumped through the windows in their haste, while the majority rushed to the doors. In the excitement some fell on the floor, while others tumbled over them. Before all the frightened passengers could make their escape, the Orange local crashed into the rear car, telescoping it, and driving it into the car ahead, also telescoping that, dealing death on all sides. A passenger who reached New York said he had counted fifteen dead bodies alongside the wreck, and that others were thought to be dead.

W. J. Turner, Baskin Ridge, N. J.
Edward Kinsey, Bernardsville, N. J.
John Fish, Summit, N. J.
J. Purrington, Sport Hills, N. J.
John R. Rimmer, Summit, N. J.
T. J. Ryan, Milburn, N. J.

At Crane's morgue:

Edwin Morrell, Summit, N. J.
Frazier, residence not known.
William Ferguson, Summit, N. J.

The following are also reported dead, but so far have not been located:

Dr. James Doty, Baskin Ridge, N. J.
Rich, Summit, N. J.

A list of the seriously injured, as far as ascertained, is as follows: Fred Ferguson, Summit, N. J., badly crushed; will probably die. Miss Ferguson, Summit, injured about the head. William Barcliffe, Gladstone, N. J., scalds. Louis Bodine, Newark, N. J., badly crushed. Edward Pierson, Newark, back and head injured. Frank Schurz, son of Carl Schurz, New York, badly injured.

New York Stock Market.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15. Money on call has been easy, ranging from 1 to 1½ per cent, last loan at 1 and closing offered at 1. Prime mercantile paper 4@4½ per cent.

A strong tone characterized the dealings at the stock exchange to-day. As on Saturday the trading element was imbued with the belief that Secretary Carlisle will have to issue short term bonds to tide the Treasury over its difficulties. They argue that this will release a pile of money and probably start up the fires of speculation afresh. A bond issue is the one thing needed, so the most sanguine profess to believe, to bring into active circulation the tremendous amount of capital now lying idle at this point. Incidentally the heavy eastbound shipments from Chicago 120,000 tons for the past week, and purchases of about seven thousand shares of various stock for London account had a stimulating influence. Total sales, 189,213 shares.

Railway and miscellaneous bonds were active and strong. The sales were $1,692,000.

Exchange on London, 4.85. Sight drafts, 4.86½@87.

We are perhaps [illegible] We are [illegible] leisure and social opportunities [illegible] them to study methods by which we may be made to suffer. [illegible] years ago we formed a set of resolutions and a musical preamble, of which I was the author, wherein we pledged ourselves to fight the snakes by which we had been be-fig-leaved to the party, be it Democratic, Republican or Scattering, which seemed most free and open hearted in the matter of mangel wurtz seed and the seed of the Little Early Low Flat Dimished cabbage.

Of course we shall grieve if congress should hold the same opinions as the president regarding the malignant and dangerous use of seeds, both as a corrupter of the farmer and depleter of the treasury, but we shall comfort ourselves with the recollection that a good many of the seeds never grew anyway, and those which did so produced plants as different from the picture on the wrapper as the average party record is from its platform.

But I find that quite a number of men both here and at home do not agree with the president on this point and attribute our disastrous summer and autumn to other and quite different causes. In some cases it was due to individual extravagance. For one, I know I was not so economical during the past year as I might have been. I also had money which I should have placed in circulation instead of hoarding it. I can see now that I should have bought a cow with it. Then I would have had the cow and some poor man would have had the use of the money. There are many reasons why stringency came into our midst. The seeds of vice and extravagance sown broadcast may be in a measure to blame, but the seeds of the Trophy tomato and the Early Little Dwarf Scrambled Scotch kale are not at fault.

As a farmer I can place my hand on my heart and say, if it be the last word I ever utter, that aside from what I have already stated I am as innocent of bringing this financial distress on the country as the child unborn. I know lots of other farmers who can say the same thing.

Then why should our seed supply, poor as it is, have to be shut off in order to bring about prosperity and plenty? Of course we are ignorant of [illegible] and a [illegible] We [illegible] in the fall of the year [illegible]

[illegible] William the Conqueror [illegible] When the contractor sought to seal the [illegible] place that had been put in the wrong end of the chimney, William the Conqueror would call him aside and cut off his head with a bright new battleax.

Quite a number of cloisters are connected with the castle, as all now appears, but they are not needed. In building last year I had contemplated having some cloisters also, as I thought they would be a novelty, but my architect was from Nova Scotia and did not know how to build one.

The history of England has been almost made here in this castle since the time of William the Conqueror, for it has been the abode of her sovereigns up to this moment and ever since that time. The building consists of two quadrangles flanked by 12 towers and has room for all the help to sleep on the place instead of boarding at home.

St. George's chapel is the first object of interest and is a very pleasing Gothic structure erected by Edward IV for the Knights of the Garter. Albert Memorial chapel is also on the place, to be ready for use in case St. George's should be out of order. Albert Memorial chapel was built by Henry VII for a mausoleum, but was, so I hear, the house that he abandoned this plan and was afterward buried at Westminster abbey.

The queen's audience chamber was the first of the state apartments I visited. It is said that some people are able here to obtain an audience with the queen who could not get an audience anywhere else. A theatrical friend of mine yesterday told me that his only audience in London had been one given him by the lord mayor, who is quite easy of approach, resembling the late Carter Harrison in this respect.

The audience chamber has a painted ceiling, but while conversing with her most gracious majesty it is not good form to examine this too long. On the walls there is a fine clothing out tale of tapestry and other remnants. The tapestry represents scenes in the life of Queen Esther and Mordecai.

The guard chamber is devoted mostly to itself and heavy hardware, panoplies, bomb proof waistcoats, chilled steel trousers, hollow ground cutlasses, stab knives, galvanized iron tippets, cast iron bucking gloves and metallic suits for jousting, chain mail health underwear and steel [illegible] in the [illegible]

Fuller's Famous Four-in-hands.

Lawson N. Fuller, the well known New York horseman, has a four-in-hand team of trotters that he expects will soon break the record of 2 minutes 37 seconds for a mile made against time by William H. Mamo[illegible] Sparkle, Nobles and [illegible] at Cleveland Sept. 17, 1890. Mr. Fuller's team consists of Dexter and Chicken, leaders, and Wilkes and Dexter V, wheelers. The present record was made to a high seat skeleton wagon, but Mr. Fuller will use an ordinary road cart when he attempts to establish a new mark.

One odd feature connected with Mr. Fuller's whole trotters is that they are all the get of Fuller's Wilkes, except Dexter V, who is by Dexter and closely related to his mates. The team drives as if it were composed of one horse and covers a mile on the road with ease at a 2:40 gait. Mr. Fuller confidently believes that in a trial against time his quartet of fliers can reel off a mile in 2:36 or better. The race record for a four-in-hand team is much slower than the time record. It is 2:40½ and was made by Peculiar, Frank Ross, Rumps and Tom Bradley at Cleveland Sept. 7, 1886. Mr. Fuller is an inveterate horseman. He is 70 years old, but never misses his 15 or 20 mile drive daily. He estimates that he has driven nearly 60,000 miles on Manhattan Island, and even the famous blizzard of 1888 did not deter him from venturing forth with his horses for his accustomed spin.

HONEST ELECTIONS.

In the excitement over the tariff and the extra session, it ought not to be forgotten that there is pending now in the United States Senate a measure designed to do away with the only national safeguards that exist for fair Federal elections. In reporting on this measure, the Republican members of the Senate Elections Committee have used the following language:

"But whatever may be the motives of its authors, the repeal bill itself is an unprovoked and needless movement to stir up sectional bitterness, to degrade the national authority, and to encourage fraud, intimidation and violence in elections.

"The laws are to be destroyed for the purpose of offensively reasserting the old dogma of State sovereignty under which the attempted dissolution of the Union was defended in 1861. The repeal will proclaim that the State with its powers is to be magnified and honored, while the nation, with its powers duly exercised under express constitutional authority, is to be belittled and despised.

"Whatever may be the intent, the legal effect and real result of the legislation will be wholly pernicious and injurious to popular government throughout the United States."

This language is none too strong. This is not a sectional question, as the laws are not sectional laws. They are aimed at fraud in New York and Chicago as much as in Richmond or New Orleans. The real reason at the bottom of the repeal is just what the minority of the Committee have declared it to be—a belief in the old iniquitous States rights theory that we thought the war had settled but which reappears whenever the Democracy gets in the saddle.

WHO IS RESPONSIBLE?

The names of the representatives who voted for and against the resolution to adjourn the extra session of the legislature on Saturday are as follows: For adjournment—Anderson R., Babcock R., Baldwin of El Paso R., Bonynge R., Bromley Dem Pop., Brown R., Cannon R., Carnahan R., Dean R., Garcia D., Hallett R., Harper R., Heisler R., Hert R., How D., Humphrey R., Hunter R., Lowell R., Norlin R., Price R., Putnam R., Reynolds R., Ross R., Sanchez R., Sims R., Twombly R., Wootton Dem Pop., Ammons R. Total 28. Against adjournment—Baldwin of Boulder P., Bent P., Benton P., Booth P., Carney P., Cochran P., Coffman P., Crow P., Crowley P., Donath P., Dyatt Dem Pop., Fritz P., Funderburg R., Heath P., Hurt P., Hynes Dem Pop., Jenks P., Kilton R., Leonard R., Lynch P., McKnight P., Neuman P., Page P., Slawson R., Sweeney D., Wells D., Westerman P., Wicks R. Total 28. The pairs were: For—Dake R., Gill R., Moore D., Fitzgarrald Dem Pop.; against—Thomas P., Calkins P., Young P., Gordon R.

Taking account of the pairs the vote stood by parties as follows: For adjournment—Republicans 26, Democrats 3, Populists 0, Democrat-Populists 3; against adjournment—Republicans 5, Democrats 3, Populists 23, Democrat-Populists 1.

The figures are in themselves sufficient to settle the absurd claim made by some newspapers that the Republican party is in any way responsible for the disgraceful and needless extra session.

There are a few districts in this State which are in favor of the extra session, and where the people honestly believe some good would come of it. Any general characterization of those representatives who voted on Saturday against adjournment might do injustice to some men who were honestly trying to voice the sentiments of their constituents. But it is true beyond question that there are in the House men who voted against adjournment who did not represent the sentiments of their constituents, and it is difficult to find language sufficiently strong to characterize their conduct. The impossibility of legislation at this session must be apparent, the fact that the bills can only be paid from funds set aside for the charitable institutions of the State is well known; the harm to the reputation of the State is apparent; what then is to be said of the conduct of the legislator who votes to continue the useless session? Can the conclusion be avoided that the chief purpose in view is to secure the compensation which the State pays even to those who sacrifice her interests?

The Iowa legislature seems to have difficulty in choosing a United States Senator. What's the matter with J. S. Clarkson? He is able, energetic, a good politician, and young enough to have a career of usefulness before him.

The rumor that Mark Twain meant Professor Wilson in naming his new novel can scarcely be true. "Pudd'nhead" Wilson lived in Missouri. The Professor hails from West Virginia.

The Century Magazine has had the grace to allow a champion of silver some space in its columns. The "open letter" of Mr. Charles S. Thomas, in the January number, is a very able and distinguished paper, and presents the bimetallic cause in a way which reflects credit upon the author and upon the State of Colorado.

The Wilson bill will be badly disfigured by Saturday night. But the only amendment that would really do much good would be one striking out the enacting clause.

It is said that the Austro Hungarian Premier, Count Windischgraetz, is a wonderful whistler. Now we know where he got the "windisch" in his name.

Mr. Burrows was right in calling the Wilson bill "a measure to reduce revenues, destroy manufacturing and pauperize labor."

A new company has been formed to go on with the Nicaragua canal. We hope it may have better luck than the last one.

New Jersey is just a little worse afflicted than Colorado—it has two legislatures in session at once.

If Liliuokalani brings suit for damages, Cleveland ought to pay it out of his own pocket.

WOMAN'S WORLD IN PARAGRAPHS.

A Distinguished Editor's Opinion of Woman's Courage.

Editor Charles A. Dana of the New York Sun guys our sex unmercifully at times. Doubtless to a man of keen perceptions and with a sense of sarcastic humor the temptation is very great. But at least half as often as he says something bad about us he feels sorry for it, and so turns about and says something else so exceedingly good that we forgive him at once. For instance, the following brief editorial conveys the unmistakable impression that Editor Dana's heart is in the right place, however he may permit his wicked old pen to stab the babbles of woman's little conceits. I reprint the editorial because it expresses a truth that our sex ought to heed. We have been making sheep of ourselves for the wolves to eat long enough:

We have within a few months printed reports of an unusual number of cases in which the courage of women was put to the test. There was the case in which a lady woman found a burglar under the bed at midnight, dragged him out by the heels and flung him down stairs. There was the case in which a woman walking through a cross street near the East river after dark was hailed by a footpad, who demanded money. She struck him in the face with her umbrella, gave further battle and put him to flight. Not one of the cases has been more entertaining than that of the young woman who on Christmas day, while riding in an Eighth avenue car, had her pocketbook, which contained $124, stolen by a sneak thief—a tall, elderly man who sat next to her. At the moment she missed her money the thief jumped off the car and took to his heels. She rushed after him crying "Stop thief." The chase was hot down College place to Vesey and through Vesey to Broadway, where the thief was nabbed by a cop, who took him to the Tombs to await the processes of the courts. Miss Boyd got back her money, and the tall elderly sneak thief, Sun men has got a dose of the law.

Women like those of the stories here told are public benefactors. They illustrate the value of feminine courage. They give a first rate lesson to those vagabonds who think that all women are timid or even pusillanimous when in the presence of danger. There are plenty of women who are just as brave as any man in creation.

It has long been a favorite theory of mine that the farmhouse and the house in the village can be and should be provided with every convenience of the city home, except, perhaps, that of gas and electric lighting, and even the electric lighting, it is certain, will come in time. I am glad to find a confirmation of my theory in an ideal home planned out and out by a newspaper woman, Edith Sessions Tupper. In some millionaires' mansions that I have seen there lacked the dainty beauty, the artistic fitness and above all the home feeling present in this charming cottage. The deep window seat, the shining green palms, the whole house flooded with warmth and light, spoke to me of the gifted, gentle, yet dauntless woman herself. I knew her as novelist and newspaper correspondent. She also has the name of being the most successful woman newspaper interviewer in New York. But I was ignorant that her versatile gifts included also the ability to plan a house. She can do that, too, however, and I wonder that more women do not exploit themselves in the same field. Mrs. Tupper's house is away from city gas and waterworks. But there is a furnace in the light, dry cellar, whose genial warmth penetrates every part of the cottage. There is not a stove or a cold room in Mrs. Tupper's house. The next question was how to get hot and cold water for the bathroom. This was accomplished by means of a tank in the garret and heating flues from the furnace in the cellar.

One of the last and grimmest educational strongholds in the world has at length been captured by women. Heidelberg university has conferred on Fraulein Windscheid, after a brilliant examination, the full degree of Ph. D. It is likely that Heidelberg will soon be opened throughout to women.

A lady of Minnesota, Miss Sara M. Pollard, has conducted with the greatest success for nine years a farm at Dugdale, Polk county, Minn. Miss Pollard does her own plowing, planting and cultivating. In order to be dressed suitably for her work, she wears a bloomer costume in the field. She has prospered so well that she has been able lately to add 160 acres more to her farm.

The Worst Air.

A scientific man says that the worst air is found in two strata, one near the ground—everybody knows that—and the other at a height of about 90 feet. This height represents the average altitude of the discharge of gas smoke and offensive fumes given off by the factories and other industrial appurtenances of a city. It has also been found that one is just as apt to get malaria if he lives on a dry, well drained slope above a marsh or stagnant water as if he lived in the marsh.

The caves or grottoes discovered in Carniola, a province of Austria, in 1889 are said to be equal in extent to our Kentucky wonder.

LADIES' LIBRARIES.

RICH WOMEN WHO SELECT BOOKS AND READ THEM.

Mrs. John Mackay's Parisian Library—Miss Helen Gould as a Bibliophile—Mrs. Frank Leslie as a Reader and a Linguist. Mrs. Paran Stevens' Taste.

In Mrs. John Mackay's Parisian home the library has a surplus of American books. The Princess Colonna, the daughter of the house, says this is to assuage her father's homesickness. Nathaniel Hawthorne, Washington Irving, Longfellow and James Russell Lowell's works hold first place. Mrs. Mackay's love of patriotism has tempted her to fill the apartments with American curiosities, including many old Indian wood carvings, frameworks and brackets of dried shells and herb roots and antique implements of warfare. At their residence in Italy the Mackays have a small but expensive collection of books of antiquity and a goodly number of the standard novels, encyclopedias and histories. But it is in London that this American queen shows to the full her pride in a fine family library. Here she has given over a suit of sunny square rooms to the devotion of books and their authors.

Many pleasant morning and afternoon lectures are heard in this retreat, and some of the finest scholars of our century have made their debut as public speakers here.

The great family libraries of the Astors, the Goulds, the Vanderbilts, the Belmonts, the Goelets and the Townsend Burdens I find have been almost wholly furnished after the design and tastes of the women of the families. In all these old residences there is the library, where the master of the house secludes himself, and where each member of the family goes to study or imbibe by atmospheric influence the beauties, decorations and books.

Miss Helen Gould has a library of her own, and it is more interesting from the fact that she has chosen every book in it herself and arranged them to suit her fancy. For a financier's daughter, it may seem peculiar that her mind runs to poetry. Miss Gould in her library makes a pleasing picture. She is tall, slender and dignified. She is not faultless in face and figure, but she is in character. Her coloring is excellent, and she has the manners of a Boston girl.

She has upon a long series of shelves a full set of the books by modern poets, clothed in white and gold. She has a fancy for collecting all the poetical works of women, and she has several hundred volumes by almost unknown feminine poets. Histories, art books and encyclopedias, with the standard philosophies, make up a fine realm of study, and Miss Gould is a student. She enjoys the intimate friendship of Mrs. Russell Sage, the wife of the millionaire, who is a graduate of the Emma Willard seminary and a well read and much traveled woman. Mrs Sage's mind turns to historical novels and works of fiction, but owing to her husband's love of religious books she has made a collection of the works of Sayce, Renan, Madden, Lumby, Hooker, Woodhouse, Leathes and other great sacred writers.

Mrs. Theodore Sutro, a distinguished society leader, has a royally furnished library. The decorations are dark, sumptuous and steadfast. There are two marquetry desks of value in the room and one old English escritoire. The woodwork is of wine colored mahogany, and there are small beveled glasses on all sides, which make everything appear doubly luxurious. Shelves are set into the walls and the curtains shielding them are of Persian fabrics, filled in with silver and gold geometrical figures, circles and arabesques. Mrs. Sutro's library has over $50,000 worth of books in it.

Mrs. Frank Leslie has a $20,000 library at her business office and a much more costly one at her home in the Gerlach hotel. Mrs. Leslie has a multitude of foreign books. She possesses a taste for studying languages and speaks well in five tongues.

Mary Scott Rowland's eccentricity is hoarding up books upon health and beauty. She has hundreds of these volumes yellow with age and bound in the choicest leather. A recent gift of hers to Patti was an antique reprint on the toilet of a Roman maiden. Mrs. Rowland has spent many seasons abroad picking up the writings of noted French and German writers upon that subject nearest to woman's heart—beauty.

Mrs. Paran Stevens owns a celebrated classical library, and I am told revels in the study of Greek plays and Greek poetry.

Mme. Alberti, whose palatial residence at 557 Fifth avenue is filled with valuable paintings and exquisite bric-a-brac, has a library of Gothic fashion. Everything in it partakes of that quaint and inimitable style. Each article is made for specific use, and the whole air is that of dignity. Mme. Alberti, being of intensely artistic temperament, understands the wonderful beauty of breaking lines and the changeful color of drapery and uses it everywhere, topping the mantels upon which small books rest, hanging on the shelves, rolling in folds across tables and enriching chair and divan. These draperies usher one into mysterious moods befitting the home of books. The silken scarfs and long sashes are entirely covered with hand work, frequently of open spaces of plain, rich silk between broad bands of velvet, in which triangles, rings and squares encircle griffins, peacocks, swallows, tigers' heads, apples of gold, half moons of silver and branches of palm.

Madam is of a metaphysical nature and loves books of mysticism, philosophy and fiction, and she has them by the hundreds. She is among the great Delsarte leaders of the day, and she collects many books by and about the great French master of spiritual and physical expression.

A Disputed Diagnosis.

An Irishman who was employed in the iron works in a western town was advised by his physician to seek some employment where the labor was less severe, on account of an enlargement of the heart. He proceeded, therefore, to set up a small grocery, which was well patronized by his friends.

He was not in the habit of diminishing his prospects of financial success by giving "down weight," and one afternoon, when a customer asked for a pound of sugar, he added pinch by pinch until the scale barely turned.

"Pat," inquired the customer, looking up innocently at his careful weigher, "phwat was it the docther said was ailin' ye?"

"Well, thin," said the customer, "it's toime ye were changin yer docther, Pat. The wan that's tindin ye now don't understhand yer disease mebby. Yer haart is gettin smaller moighty fast, an it's in great danger ye are."—Youth's Companion.

Wasted Sympathy.

The author of "Here and There In Italy," recalls the story of the German tourist at Capri, who one day, in the course of strolling about, saw a beautiful girl in the old costume of the island, bending over the edge of a frightful precipice. Hurriedly advancing, the kindly man in his best German-Italian besought her to leave the dangerous spot, but the girl sadly shook her head and would not stir.

"Lofely maid," cried he, "why do you despair? Why should one so charming weary of life? For yes! I know your purpose. You seek to die."

Apparently trembling with emotion, the girl turned her head aside.

"Come!" urged the German. "Don't, pray don't do it!"

At this the girl bent her "lofely" eyes full upon him and, starting up answered.

"The signor is right. I will not do it."

The German went away rejoicing in the belief that he had saved the poor creature's life. But the next day, chancing to pass the spot again, he was thunderstruck at finding the same girl in the same attitude.

He was about to seize her arm when a loud voice called from behind him:

"Please keep on one side, sir! I can't see my model."

There was an artist at his easel behind a big rock. The German walked on.—Youth's Companion.

All He Wanted.

"What do you want?" she asked of the tramp who had made his way around to the kitchen door.

"Money, I suppose. We don't give tramps money."

"No'm, I don't want no money."

"Well, we have no victuals except for dinner, and they ain't done yet."

"I don't even ask for none of yer dinner, ma'am. All I want is some dry bread—jes' dry bread."

She was touched.

"No'm. I druther hev the dry bread."

"Do you like it?"

"No, but yer see me an the rest of the boys hez hustled aroun till we've got a turkey, an some celery, an some cranberry sauce, an some plum puddin, an all we want now is jes' the dry bread ter make the stuffin of."—Washington Star.

& Penrose, who are working the r lode above the French mill, ened up a fine vein over four feet thin 200 feet of the mill; they in the near future to put in a y that will carry their low grade he mill by gravity. There is no this being the extension of the Mary Nevins vein, as the St. only 300 feet from the side lines ary Nevins, which has opened up he best veins in the camp, with streak thirty inches wide, and per $100 per ton. The owners St. Clair expect to open up the chute within twenty feet of their shaft. They are at present working only forty feet deep and running a drift from the bottom of the shaft towards the Mary Nevins.

A letter, dated Dec. 30, to Mr. F. W. Isham of this city, from a London capitalist of wide experience in the South African gold and diamond fields, and who is about to come over to this country and Cripple Creek in the interest of an English syndicate, states that the camp is gaining in Great Britain a good reputation as a first-class and stable district, and men of large means are becoming daily more interested. Hurrah for our own Cripple Creek!

A meeting of the special committee of the Work directors and stockholders was held last evening at the office of Mr. Slaughter Bassett. It was of a perfectly harmonious nature, and looks to a prompt and amicable settlement of their differences. Mr. W. A. Otis, probably accompanied by Mr. Bassett, will go to camp this morning to settle with the men for their thirty days' work, and to prepare their report for the stockholders' meeting which occurs Jan. 26.

F. H. Pettingell is collecting as many proxies as possible from stockholders of the Work company favoring the assessment plan of pursuing work upon the properties. All persons favoring this method and opposed to leasing, who cannot be present at the meeting, will please send their proxies to the above gentleman. He will put up the money on some 300,000 shares of his own, and strongly advises all stockholders to do the same.

A telegram received in the city yesterday from Mr. Thos. Tribe at the Fannie Rawlings mine states that for forty-one tons of ore sent to the Elgin smelter at Leadville they received $1,350, and that another lot is ready which will run better. This stuff is gold ore showing very little silver and it is said there are thousands of tons of it in the mine. Naturally the owners are jubilant.

Another new firm steps boldly to the front, none other than our old friends, Q. E. Hicks and Jno. A. Sprague. They call it Hicks & Sprague now, and will be pleased to have the stockbuying public all congregate at their office, room 10, in the Bank block.

Plausible Explanation.

Howard's father is a physician, and one day when the doctor was out Howard and a little visitor were "playing doctor" in the real doctor's office.

"Wh—wh—where did it come from?" asked Walter, with chattering teeth.
